

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

THE TAILOR.

(AFTER EDGAR A. POE.)

ONCE upon a morning dismal, as I smoked in blues
abyssmal,

Gazing at the curious patterns on the dressing-gown I wore,

While my cat her milk was lapping, suddenly there came a tapping,

Like a fellow's knuckles rapping, rapping at my chamber-door;

"It's that nuisance Smith," I muttered, "rapping at my chamber-door—

He may rap his fingers sore."

Ah ! I do remember clearly small was then my income yearly,

And to pay my lodging nearly did my slight finances floor ;

And my prospects, never sunny, fishy were as any tunny,

And I sadly wanted money, money to pay Baize and Blore,

Pay the fashionable tailors called in Oxford Baize
and Blore,

Who will dun me evermore.

But my cat, prophetic pussy, now got ominously fussy, Clawed me, pawed me with her talons as she'd never done before ;

So that now to stay her terror and convince her of her error,

"Tabby," said I, "it is Smith entreating entrance at my door ;

It's that feeble Smith demanding entrance at my
chamber-door,

Only Smith and nothing more !"

THE TAILOR.

Presently my chair removing and most seriously re-proving

My grimalkin for the dreadful way in which she spat and swore,

From my writing-table's kneehole stole I softly to the wee hole

Which the people call the keyhole—keyhole of my
chamber-door,

Peeping through it saw another eye the other side the door,

Looking at me—nothing more.

Straight to stop that sly eye's prying, to the key my lips applying,

Blew I such a puff of smoke as no man ever puffed
before ;

Then I heard him backward starting, rub his eye as if
'twere smarting,

And he seemed to be departing, so I whispered, "Is it sore?"

This I whispered through the keyhole ; echo answered,
"It is sore."

Answered thus, and nothing more.

Back I went and felt elated, and my blues had now abated,

When again I heard that rapping rather louder than
before :

“Surely,” said I, rising, “surely, if he thinks I’ll sit demurely

While he makes that din ~~securely~~, his mistake he shall deplore ;

If I only catch him at it his misdeed he shall deplore—
He shall not annoy me more.”

Open here I flung the portal, when there entered in a mortal,

Crooked-legged, with clothes too short all—seedy garments that he wore ;

Never once “good-morning” bade me—not a bow or scrape he made me,

But upon my table laid me down a bill from Baize and Blare,

Took his stand upon the oilcloth just within my
chamber-door,

Stood and hiccupped—nothing more.

Then this festive creature winning all my sad soul into grinning,

Such a visage idiotic I had never seen of yore ;

“ Well, you have been drinking brandy,” said I, “ and your legs are bandy,

And you hardly look a dandy, though you come from
Baize and Blore ;

‘ Tell me what on earth your name is in the firm of Baize and Blore ?’

Quoth the tailor, “ Tick-no-more !”

Scarce I wondered this unsightly dun had answered unpolitely,

And his answer little comfort, little consolation bore ;

For you cannot help confessing that it’s surely not a blessing

When you find yourself addressing dun within your
chamber-door ;

Man or dun upon the oilcloth just within your
chamber-door,

With a name like Tick-no-more.

But the tailor standing solus gave me like a bitter bolus

That one word, as if his vacant soul in that he did outpour ;

Me with no fine words he buttered, this from time to time he stuttered,

Till I very softly muttered, "Other duns have been
before ;

They will give me further credit as my tradesmen have before ;"

Then the dun said, "Tick-no-more !"

Startled that he spoke so flatly, and replied so very patly,

"Limited," I said, "it seems is his linguistic stock and store ;

If of no more words he's master, if he duns not harder, faster,

Verily he'll bring disaster on the house of Baize and
Blore,

And I shall remain indebted to the firm of Baize and Blore

For ever, evermore."

Still his strange demeanour winning all my sad soul into grinning,

Straight I wheeled a cushioned couch in front of oil-cloth, dun, and door ;

Then upon the cushions sinking I betook myself to drinking

Little sips of sherry, thinking what this plague from
Baize and Blore,

What this gloomy, greasy, groggy messenger from
Baize and Blore

Meant by stuttering, "Tick-no-more."

But my cat I soothed by stroking, and small bits of bread kept soaking

In the milk, and gave them to her, dropped them for her on the floor :

Long I sat, strange things divining, with my head at ease reclining

Near the sherry I was wining that the dun's eye
gloated o'er,

But the liquor I was wining with his green eyes gloating o'er

He shall taste, oh ! nevermore.

Cloud by cloud the air grows denser, perfumed from my meerschaum censer,

I should think I must have smoked of pipes that morning half-a-score ;

"Man," I said, "I have no treasure, or I'd pay the bill with pleasure,

Only once more take my measure for a suit from
Baize and Blore,

Take your tape and take my measure for a suit from Baize and Blore."

Quoth the tailor, "Tick-no-more !"

"Dun !" I cried, "inhuman creature, human still in form and feature,

Much I've hoped you'd take my orders as you've always done before ;

Tell me—for although you're fuddled, you're not utterly bemuddled—

Tell me if this hope I've cuddled is well-founded, I implore ;

Will they, will they give me credit ? tell me clearly, I
implore ?"

Quoth the tailor, "Tick-no-more !"

Quoth I cried, "inhuman creature, human still in form and feature,

By the pipe who performed for Moses in the days of yore,

Tell me won't, oh ! brainless brute, your firm supply to me in future

Raiment of unequalled suture—genuine make of Baize
and Blore,

Clothes of rare and radiant suture—splendid make of Baize and Blore ?"

Quoth the tailor, "Tick-no-more !"

"Then be off, you sour curmudgeon !" cried I, starting up in dudgeon,

"Get you back to goose and scissors, get you back to
Baize and Blore ;

Leave no long account suggestive of reflections most unfestive,

Such as make me sleepless, restive—quit my chamber,
quit my door ;

Take your bill from off my table, take yourself from out my door !"

Quoth the tailor, "Tick-no-more !"

Thus the tailor dunned for payment for the raiment, for the raiment

Mentioned in the bill he did not take from out my
chamber-door;

Thus he left me grimly staring, and that long account up tearing,

Part went up the chimney flaring, part lay scattered on the floor ;

But that bill whose shreds went flying or lay scattered on the floor

Now is settled evermore.

ODE TO THE LARGE BARMAID

AT THE TAP.

BARMAID Titanic,
Oh ! pardon the panic
That seized on my soul when I first saw your face ;
For wild consternation,
And deep perturbation,
To feelings far other have long given place !

Now with eye of a critic,
Mid vapours mephitic,
That exhale from the liquors you vend in the bar,
My calm eyebrows under
I look up with wonder,
And think what a most unique creature you are !

Miss Fama, as stated
By Virgil,* was rated
A rather fast lady in times long ago ;
Her head went through cloudland,
Her feet walked on ploughed land ;
How she managed to do it I really don't know.

But one thing I'm sure of,
She did not procure of
Such lofty-heeled shoes as I've seen a large pair,
Just such as I chanced once
To spy as you danced once
Across the bar parlour and over a chair !

The daughters of Anak
No doubt had a gay knack
Of decking their hair, and would carefully trim
Their locks in sweet style up,
Yet did they not pile up
Pads and chignons like you to astound Anakim.

* "Fama, malum quo non aliud velocius ullum."

Vain, vain the contortions
By which those proportions
Of waist elephantine you strive to reduce !
Read Horace ;* he'll show you
Most clearly that, though you
Fetter Nature in stays, she is sure to break loose.

My advice is this briefly :
I'd urge on you chiefly
That in dressing your locks the great Heidelberg tun,
You ought not to strive all
Your powers to rival ;
Such a coiffure's not pleasing, and dangerous when done.

I'd caution you further
What risk of self-murder
You run if you will with such stringency clasp
Certain buckles or braces,
Or thingumbob laces,
Till your waist be the size of the waist of a wasp.

* "Naturam expellas furcâ, tamen usque recurret."

For just as the slim* full-blown poppy when brimful
 Of rain-water droops to the ground its red cup,
 And down in the dirt, you
 Know, withers its virtue,
 While its stalk breaks in two, or at least doubles up.

Or as a new meerschaum
 (So called, but a dear sham),
 Whose bowl is too heavy, whose stem is too slender,
 snaps through and smashes,
 As you tap out the ashes,
 Smashes just where it cannot be mended again—

Just so you will copy
 That pipe or that poppy ;
 You'll bend double, you'll break, you will fall, you will snap
 In two parts at the girdle,
 Oh ! it makes my blood curdle
 To think what a loss that would be to the Tap.

THE DON OF ORIEL.

THERE went a don of Oriel,
Star of the staff tutorial,
In times most immemorial,
    To dine at Brasenose,
And there the juice beneficent
Of port, antique, magnificent,
In one hour and a jiffey sent
    His senses to repose.

Now buttery cats were squealing ;
The midnight hour was pealing ;
He left the gateway reeling ;
    The Radcliffe loomed immense.
Pale moonlight showed him haggard,
As o'er the stones he staggered ;
You might have called him blackguard,
    Just in the present tense.

Amid those feline wailings
To stay his footsteps' failings,
He seized upon the railings
That round the Radcliffe run ;
And clinging to them, wary
Of letting go most chary,
He passed thy church, St. Mary,
Before the clock struck one.

Along All Souls he passed on,
And by the schools made haste on,
And so arrived at last on
The spot he started from ;
He made (read with concern, all !)
Four times that tour nocturnal
Ere two of hours diurnal
Were told by Christ Church Tom.

In Brasenose a student,
Who spent the whole day ludent,
And read thus late, imprudent,
Looked forth into the night ;

He watched with cachinnation,
And facial perturbation,
The don's perambulation,
The star tutorial's plight.

He saw him catch and stumble,
And clutch and miss and fumble ;
He heard him fume and grumble
The street had got no end !
At last with joy decided
He saw relief provided,
And him policeman-guided Homeward his footsteps bend.

I've heard expressed a notion That Alma Mater's motion,
Though not result of potion,
Is like that of the don ;
And Union spouters proving
That she is always moving
A circle or a groove in,
And never does get on ;

Till the policeman national Detects her course irrational,
And comes down with a crash on all
Her antiquatedness ;
Sends, spite of " your petitioners,"
A dozen Royal Commissioners,
Of old ways abolitioners,
To force her to progress.

WHAT IS LOVE?

“Love! what is love?” I asked an innocent child,
Who sucked some compound dire the while he dinned
Wild music from a broken drum. He smiled
Broader and broader till at length he grinned,
Gave to each finger an elaborate lick,
And said, “I love, I love—dis treacle stick.”

“Love! what is love?” I asked a well-breeched youth,
Over whose head ten summers might have rolled;
Upon his brow seemed stamped the mark of truth.
He looked at me, and answered frank and bold,
And wished he might be hanged, and dashed, and blowed,
And botheration take him if he knowed.

"Love! what is love?" I asked a new-wed bride.

"Oh!" said she, "it is soft emotion's flow;

It's mutual affection's gushing tide;

It is a foretaste given us here below

Of rapture and of bliss that is above.

Love is my William, and my William love."

"Love! what is love?" I asked a careworn soul,

Who was belabouring his spouse with a cudgel,

And she was culling from his tristful poll

Handfuls of hair. "Love!" cried he, "it is fudge all!

But have you eyes, and do you ask of me?

Why, drat the dreaming bachelor! can't he see?"

THE SUPPER OF THE FOUR.

(AFTER EDGAR A. POE.)

Remiges quinque a Nunchamo reversi in Ricardi hospitii cenaculum intrant, ex quibus quidam sic loquitur :

“ AH ! ’pon my word, you fellows, I’m as tired as I was ever !

For supper shout, and let the scout know we’re come from the river ;

And a cushion quick ! a cushion, Dick, give now or nevermore,

For on this bare cane-bottomed chair I will not sit :
I’m sore.

Come let the mackerel soused be brought, the pigeonpie, the tongue,

The cider-cup and straws, and let the radishes be young ;

Oh ! William, bring the radishes, and, William, bring them young.”

Cui speculator.

“Commons for five, sir, pigeon-pie, I’m ordered to provide,
 And beer as usual, I suppose, and cider-cup beside.
 The mackerel soused, sir, shall be brought, and ham,
 and lamb, and tongue,
 And potted meats, and salad too, and radishes, sir,
 young ;
 I’ll get them if I can, and, sir, I’ll try to get them
 young.”

Horrendâ post canam voce cantantes ceteros sic excipit

Ricardus hospes :

“Cœnavimus; but howl not thus: let our Noachian song
 Float on the air so tunefully the dean may feel no wrong.”

Noachii carminis epitome :

“St. James’s Park received the ark on its primeval tide,*
 All creatures wild thereto beguiled were stabled safe inside ;

* “Old Father Noah, he built him an ark,
 And set it afloat in St. James’s Park, &c.”—SONG.

By ones, by pairs, they mount the stairs, they mount.
by threes and fours,
Fowls came from perches, beasts from lairs, and thronged about the doors
By five, by six, by seven, by eight, by nine, by ten, by scores."

Tum solito hilarior factus hospes olim tristissimus exclamat :

"Hurrah! to-night my heart is light! no blues I'll conjure up,
But drown the demons out of sight in a draught of cider-cup;
We'll drain it dry, then let us try to soothe our temperate mirth,
The comfort of post-prandial pipe, ere each one seek his berth,
May health to all our friends and bane to all our foes be given!"

Propinant omnes.

Now for the pipe and then to sleep, like to the sleepers seven,
From toil and boose to snore and snooze sound as the sleepers seven.

THE WHOLE HOG.

THERE was a youth who'd pondered much,
And come to the conclusion,
That all things here beneath the moon
Are but a vain delusion.

So he went in for the total hog,
The short life and the merry,
Laid in a stock of strong cigars,
And ran a bill for sherry.

In soft armchair behold him now
Luxuriously reclining,
With half a score of other fools
All smoking and all wining,
While as he puffs with listless eyes,
His clouds of smoke uprising,
His cogitations shape themselves
In such soliloquising :

“All hail tobacco! weed maligned,
Since you were roundly cursed,
And in a royal counterblast
Blown up by James the First.

“To hear such bigots rave and vent
On you their pious spleen,
One might suppose that e’en hot Nick
Must be in Nicotine.

“Wine’s often apt to turn the head,
And turn the stomach too,
And cards are scarcely pleasant when You’re losing fast at loo.

“Tobacco will not treat you so,
And spill you from your chair,
He will not empty out your purse,
And fill you full of care.

“So when all things go well with me,
And quiet is the world,
’Tis thus I lie and watch my wreaths
Of fragrant smoke upcurled.

“And when the world goes wrong with me,
With troubles when oppressed,
Of all the antidotes for blues
The peaceful pipe is best.

“Now pass the bottle round again,
And fill me up once more ;
Libations, Baccy, unto thee
For ever let me pour.”

Thus far the youth : then sudden stopped,
And sighed, for now indeed he Began to feel all over him
Sensations queer and seedy.
The room ran round ; in dizzy maze
The walls and pictures flew ;
And where before one lamp he saw,
There now seemed dancing two.

Three moments brief he sat and stared,
Now paling and now flushing,
Then from his chair rose like a ghost,
And to the coal-box rushing,

Poured many a full libation out
    With quick convulsive motion,
Such as from steamboats qualmish souls
    Pour to the troubled ocean.

Long time he lay and rolled his eyes
    Like ducks in thunder dying ;
Hours came and went, and still all night
    He tossed, lamenting, sighing :
“ Oh dear ! if this is the total hog,
    For me he's much too big ;
It's clear that I can only go
    A very little pig.”

So this gay youth he pondered more,
    And reached a new conclusion,
That, after all, this mortal world
    Is real and no delusion.
He left off going the total hog,
    The short life and the merry,
Sold off his stock of strong cigars,
    And paid his bill for sherry.

THE UNDERGRAD.

(AFTER TENNYSON.)

His fists across his breast he laid,
He was more mad than words can say ;
Bareheaded rushed the Undergrad
To mingle in November's fray.
In cap and gown a don stepped down
To meet and greet him on his way ;
" It is no wonder," said his friends,
" He has been drinking half the day."

All black and blue, like cloud and skies,
Next day that proctor's face was seen ;
Bruised were his eyebrows, bruised his eyes,
Bruised was his nose and pummelled mien.
So dire a case, such black disgrace,
Since Oxford was had never been ;
That Undergrad took change of air
At the suggestion of the dean.

TO MY SCOUT.

AFTER A SMASH (AND TENNYSON.)

Plate, and decanter, and glass !

It's enough to worry a cherub,

And loosen the tongue of an ass.

It's all very well to declare

That your "helbow" caught in the door,

And your "fut" must 'ave 'itched in a nail,

And you're very sorry, you're sure.

And I'm very hard up just now,

Three troublesome duns to stop,

But I wish I'd only got half the coin

I've paid to that china-shop.

You must order another new set.

It's good for trade ; but I'd like to know

What is the commission* you get ?

(AFTER LONGFELLOW.)

DON'T tell me in cheerful numbers
That the jug is full of cream !
For the milkman's conscience slumbers,
And things are not what they seem !

(AFTER LONGFELLOW.)

Two belated men from Oxford,
Members of a nameless college—
Pip, the philosophic smoker,
And his friend they called the Fluffer—
Men belated in the country,
Lost their way geologising ;
Reached the city after midnight,
After lawful hour of entry,
By the gateway of the college.
And they did not rouse the porter,
For they knew the dean was wrathful,
And had vowed a weighty vengeance
If a man knocked in belated.

But they gat them round a back way,
Where a wall divides the college

From intrusion of the vulgar.
Stole they down a lonely footpath,
And they halted where a sapling
Very near the wall was growing ;
And above an ancient elm-tree
Stretched a downward arm in welcome
To embrace the little sapling.

Each in turn his toe adapted
Where a crevice in the stonework,
In the worn and ancient stonework,
Gave a short precarious foothold
While they climbed the little sapling.
Pip had scaled the wall, and, sitting,
Helped the Fluffer struggling upwards,
When a Bobby, a policeman,
Irreproachable policeman,
Came upon them round the corner,
And remarked, " Gents, I have caught you ;
You're a pretty pair of wallflowers !"
Then the Fluffer answered briefly,
Answered, " Bobby, you have caught us,"
And the careful Pip, the smoker,

From his seat upon the wall-top,
Echoed, "I believe you've caught us."

But the Bobby, the policeman,
Said, "I have not seen you do it—
Seen you over any wall get ;
And perhaps I should not see you,
If I happened to be looking
In an opposite direction,
With my back turned right upon you."
Nothing further said the Bobby,
Irreproachable policeman,
Only grinned, and seemed to linger.

Quick then Pip pulled up the Fluffer,
And inquired, "Old fellow, Fluffer,
Have you any coin about you ?"
And the Fluffer from his pockets
Brought the bob, the silver shilling,
And the piece of six, the tizzy,
And the piece of four, the joey,
And the double bob, the florin.
Down he threw them on the pathway ;
Then the Bobby, the policeman,

Picked them up, and whispered softly,
Somebody had dropped some money,
He was lucky to have found it.

After that did Pip, the smoker,
And his friend they called the Fluffer,
Get across the wall securely ;
But the Bobby, the policeman,
Irreproachable policeman,
Did not see them get across it ;
For he happened to be looking
In an opposite direction,
And his back was turned upon them.

THE SCHOOLMASTER'S SQUINT.

“ SCHOOLMASTER, give me, pray, a hint,
What is the reason that you squint ?
Your right eye stares straight, fierce, and full,
As visual organ of a bull ;
Your left asserts, to earthward thrown,
An independence of its own,
And like a half-set sun lies hid,
Half-covered by its lower lid.
The one so wondrous large and big is,
The other small as eye of pig is.
But when I knew you long ago
Your eyes were not distorted so.
O ! master, give me, pray, a hint,
And tell the reason why you squint.”

“To keep in awe unruly boys
My right eye's utmost power employs.
All day it glares stern and severe,
Like eye of Ancient Marinere ;
It holds the quailing class in thrall,
And order reigns from wall to wall.
Is fixed on papers, desk, and book.
At first I found it hard to do,
But by degrees the habit grew ;
And now for ever, fast as flint
Is fixed these orbs' divergent squint.”

A VALENTINE.

WHAT ? lady, did they really say

That you're a perfect fright ?

So will not I ; I would not be

So truly unpolite.

TO L. P. ON TAKING HIS DEGREE.

(AFTER SHAKSPEARE, IN "CYMBELINE.")

FEAR no more the voice of the don,
Nor the oft-cut tutor's rages,
Thou thy Oxford course hast run,
And art numbered with the sages.
All Oxford men, it's my belief,
Must graduate or come to grief.

Fear no more the snarl of the sub.,*
Thou art past that tyrant's stroke.
No more buttery, beer, and grub,
No more rows with sported oak!
Even X—— himself, it's my belief,
Must graduate or come to grief!

* Sub-Warden, Sub-Rectors, &c.

Fear no more the bull-dog's dash,
Nor pursuing proctor's tone.
Fear not rustication rash,
Thou art now a graduate grown !
All we, like thee, it's my belief,
Must do the same or come to grief !

No dun's accountant harm thee !
No ugly woman charm thee !
Tick unpaid forbear thee !
Never bill come near thee !
Prosper, flourish, gain renown,
Ere you take the master's gown !

JOHN FLINN'S EPITAPH.

—— Si linguae centum sint, oraque centum Ferrea vox !

JOHN FLINN about the noon of life
Screwed up his courage, took a wife ;
But from the day he wed Miss Cloggs,
His life was worse than any dog's.
Far fewer brains had Dinah got
Than fall to other women's lot ;
Impartial Nature, compensating,
Had given her wondrous skill in rating,
Granted stentorian powers of lung,
Unwearying jaw and vigorous tongue.
Continually her voice snarled on,
Abusing, scolding, threatening John :
All day she brawled, all night she nagged,
She never tired and never flagged.

Thin by degrees and pale he grew,
And underneath his eyes was blue ;
The hair upon his head turned grey,
And still got scantier every day.
At last he took to bed, and there
Close by his side she placed her chair.
The neighbours came to say farewell ;
His griefs the poor soul dare not tell.
Only he said : " Oh ! neighbours mine,
What ails me thus ye may divine.
In ancient times strong Samson slew
A thousand men—a feat to do !
And fate like theirs is mine to-day ;
Solve me this riddle, neighbours, pray."
He said : he shook his head, he sighed,
He gasped, he guggled, and he died.
The neighbours buried him, and put
Stone at the head and at the foot.
These simple words they graved to show
What end he met who lay below :
" John Flinn lies here beneath the grass, Slain by the jawbone of an ass."

HOW TO SLEEP SOUNDLY.

FAST asleep he lay,
And they could not wake him ;
Vain it was to shout,
Vain to pinch and shake him.
Trumpets in his ear
Blew they, made a bustle,
Yet he did not stir,
Did not move a muscle.
Fifty cats they fetched,
Awful caterwaulers ;
Fifty babies too,
Warranted loud squallers ;
Sixty German bands,
Sixty hurdy-gurdies,
And the din they made
Was a “ cautio surdis.”

They in doing thus
Were mistaken grossly,
On he slept in spite,
Soundly, comatosely.
But at last they brought
From a ranter's chapel,
Boanerges Bigg,
With the case to grapple.
Boanerges was Styled a local preacher,
All his words he blew
Through his nasal feature :
Boanerges was Styled a preacher local,
And on heaven and earth,
Sea and sky did so call
That in forty winks
He aroused the sleeper ;
Would have roused him too,
Had he slept much deeper.
After brandy neat
Friends had made him toss off, he

Said, "I took up 'Proverbial Philosophy,'
And I tried to read
That book after supper;
This was the result.
Author's name is Tupper."

TEETOTALLERS' LOGIC.

MAJOR PREMISE.

THOSE who drink the smallest drop
Of liquor alcoholic,
Are doomed, as sure as eggs are eggs,
To tortures diabolic.
Whoever takes a glass or two
Has need of my monition,
He's going by the straightest route
To out and out perdition.
For one who drinks his half-a-pint
Yet more and more will drink, sir,
That when he's had enough he'll stop, 's
Improbable I think, sir.
He'll swill and swill till he's a sot,
And gets delirium tremens ;
And after that I need not prove
He's booked for all the demons.

MINOR PREMISE.

Smith, Brown, and Jones are working men,
And when the day is done, sir,
Discuss a quart of measure short,
But never more than one, sir.

CONCLUSION.

Therefore both Smith, and Brown, and Jones,
Have need of my monition,
Because they're going, sure as eggs,
The straight way to perdition.
Though now they take a little drop,
Yet more and more they'll swill, sir ;
D' you think they'll stop when they've enough ?
Oh no ! they never will, sir,
They'll drain their pots till they are sots,
And get delirium tremens,
Then down they'll go, and there below
They'll hob-nob with the demons.

SERVE HIM RIGHT.

IN TWO FYTTES.

FYTTE I.—HOW I ESCAPED.

You call me sour old bachelor,
And ask, "Why am I so?"
Well, listen to a tale I'll tell
Of twenty years ago,
When I was very nearly caught
In matrimonial ties;
Why such was not my dismal lot
Now hearken and be wise.

Let me confess in verdant youth
I was, like others, gay;
According as the proverb says,
Each puppy has his day—

Like other proverbs, half the truth,
For if I judge aright,
Wild nocturn caterwaulings tell
That each cat has his night.

I loved a lady long ago,
Fair, young, and rich was she,
And 'twould be but the truth if I
Declared that she loved me.
Her "dear papa" was pleased for her
My offer to receive,
And "dear ma" thought me quite a catch
I really do believe.

But woe is me—that is, I mean,
I met with a mishap :
Dame Fortune, as the poets say,
Expelled me from her lap.
Her "dear pa" was an Englishman,
Bluff, portly, kind, and hearty,
And in the fulness of his heart
Would give a little party.

I was invited, and beside
Some thirty-six or more,
And danced—St. Vitus ! how I danced !—
Until my feet were sore,
For I danced with my intended,
And said soft things in her ear,
Till oh, my heart ! adown her cheek
There stole a smiling tear.
She'd left her handkerchief upstairs ;*
To fetch it I was sent,
While the party all across the hall
To eat their supper went.
I soon secured the precious rag,
And kissed it o'er and o'er,
Then hasting to rejoin my love,
Rushed madly through the door.
A sneaking housemaid with her pails
Was slowly passing by,
And right against her heedlessly—
Sing sorrow ! did I fly.

* 'Cording to the top-ography of this house, the drawin'-room where they was dancing was up-stairs, eh ?—P.'s D.

Down went the maid, and down went I,
And down came pails and all,
Down came the banisters and lamp
Into the darkened hall.

My lady love all innocence
Was waiting me below,
And near her crashed the broken lamp,
And near with screams and woe
That yelling housemaid fell, and then—
Alas ! my courage fails—
Then on her head—it must be said—
Were poured out both the pails.

Out rushed the guests, and in their hands
The candles flickered dim ;
Behind them came her “ dear papa ; ”
His face was red and grim.
He seized me by the collar, and
My best dress-shirt he tore ;
He shook me as a dog a rat,
And kicked me through the door !

Then I was sorely grieved, but now
I think it did me good,
For since that I've enjoyed myself,
As ne'er before I could.
A bachelor's life's the only life
Worth living for at all.
A wife's best black may help to weave
Her husband's funeral pall.
Ye who are married must be still,
So live and love till death ;
But to the single I say " Don't,"
As Punch so wisely saith.
Now this the little moral is
I'll fix unto my tale :
Don't marry, and don't hurry, and
Don't spill the housemaid's pail.

FYTTE II.—CAUGHT AT LAST.

OH ! listen all, both great and small,
To what I've been and done ;
I that before so stoutly swore
That I would marry none.

Confounded be that scheming she !
    Confound that little ring !
Confound myself whose love of pelf
    Did all this bother bring.

Yes, pity me, for I am he,
    The very man who shaped
In happier day that joyful lay
    That told "How I escaped."
But now I've been most sadly green ;
    I'm married to a wife ;
But such a "do" I never knew—
    No, never in my life.

For some time by housekeepers I
    Was fain to be content
To manage the domestic part
    Of my establishment.
But there was always something wrong ;
    Such rows from morn to night,
That I concluded I must get
    A spouse to set things right.

Now there was a maiden lady (oh !)
Who lived across the road ;
In fact, she lived just opposite
The house where I abode.
She had eight hundred pounds a year,
As very well I knew,
So to myself I said, " I think
This lady just will do."

Oh, what an ass I made myself
When I began to court !
I used to call her angel, though
Both ugly, fat, and short ;
Her poodle dogs, tom-cats, and she's,
For nothing came amiss,
In the depth of my devotion to
My dearest, I would kiss.

The week after we were married I
Was standing at my door,
When there trotted up a waggonette,
And stopped my gate before.

Eight children tumbled out, and cried,

“ Oh, here’s our new papa !”

“ How now ?” said I. “ You little scamps,

I don’t know who you are.”

Out rushed my newly-wedded bride,

And kissed each wretched child.

Oh, sirs ! I turned as pale as death ;

My heart was throbbing wild,

When she coolly said, “ Adolphus, here’s

Our family, you see.

Ah, what a happy circle, dear

“ A—what ? a—what ? Our family ?”

(For I could scarcely speak).

“ My dear, you must be joking ; we’ve

Been married but a week !”

“ Ha ! ha !” she laughed ; “ you playful man ;

My husband who is dead

Is the father of these dear ones, who

By you must now be fed.”

Then the children laughed in concert like

Young demons, "Ha! ha! ha!

Oh, isn't this a jolly sell

For our dear new papa?"

"Keep up your pecker, pa," cried one,

"And keep your temper down."

Another said he thought that pa

Was done "uncommon brown."

At last I answered, "Madam, well,

You've got me unawares,

I wish I'd known beforehand the Real state of your affairs.

Never mind, with this reflection I'll

Contrive myself to cheer,

That I've got, besides eight children, your

Eight hundred pounds a year."

Again she laughed and ran to me,

And kissed me on the cheek,

And said to me, "You darling man,

How simply you do speak!

“For ’twas only settled on me by
That husband who is dead,
As long as I stay single, and
I lose it when I wed.”

As a general rule in what I say
Most scrupulous I am,
And my demeanour is most meek
And quiet as a lamb.
But then I must acknowledge that
I quite forgot propriety,
And said some things folks never say,
At least in good society.

A sort of scrimmage then ensued,
I scarce remember how ;
I only know Susanna’s nails
Ploughed furrows in my brow.
I rather think that in my rage
I seized her by the hair,
I know a monstrous wig came off
Her shining head, and bare !

I tore it into atoms and
I threw it in her face,
And ran as fast as I could go
From that detested place,
Embarked on board a vessel for Australia that was bound,
And after four months' voyage I
Arrived there safe and sound.

One day when I'd been there a month
I sauntered out to see
The vessels in the harbour, and
I strolled along the quay,
When I heard a well-known voice cry out,
"I'm safe, Adolphus dear !
The luggage on the pier."

Human nature couldn't stand it,
So with a desperate bound
I sprang into the water with Intention to be drowned.

"Fifty guineas to whoever brings Him out alive!" she cried ;
And in half a minute more a boat
Had rowed up close beside.

A sailor caught me by my hair
And pulled me nearly in,
When gliding through the water was Espied a long black fin.
"A shark!" they yelled ; it made a rush,
And seized me by the calf,
A horrid crush of bones ensued—
My leg was bit in half!

I paid that fifty guineas down,
I got another leg ;
Ten thousand pardons for the past
I was obliged to beg.
Now as I write my tale of woe
I tremble like a kitten ;
I know there'll be another row
When she reads what I've written.

MORAL.

Of widows, then, beware, young men,
And never be so rash,
For money's sake a wife to take
Whose only virtue's cash.
Take my advice, look sharp and "splice,"
For every mortal man
Should make his hay on sunny day,
And marry while he can.

Young ladies, too, I'd counsel you
Never your ears to stop,
But hear their prayer when lovers dare
The question great to pop ;
Lest by your scorn they get forlorn,
And take to suicide,
And leave you lone through life to moan
You never were a bride !

A FAREWELL,

AFTER SLEEPING IN ——— HOTEL (AND TENNYSON.)

BITE on, thou pertinacious flea,
And draw the tiny river ;
No more for thee my blood shall be,
For ever and for ever.

Bite, fiercely bite, and take with glee
From each unwilling giver ;
No food for thee my blood shall be,
For ever and for ever.

And here will toss some wretched he,
And here he'll tear and shiver ;
Bed-making she will hunt the flea
For ever and for ever.

A thousand limbs may smart for thee,
A thousand skins may quiver ;
But not for thee my blood shall be,
For ever and for ever.

THE AMIABLE DUN.

A FRAGMENT.

(AFTER TENNYSON.)

AT breakfast-time he comes and stands,
He puts his paper in your hands,
He hums and haws, with "ifs" and "ands."

His hands he laves with unseen soaps,*
Thanks you for nothing, says he hopes,
Then bows, "Good morning, sir :—" he slopes.

THE CURSE OF THE MUSES.

A PAGE OF (FUTURE) OXFORD HISTORY.

To a library in Oxford came,
But not to the Bodleian,
Apollo called the Belvidere,
And Venus Medicean.

Four students went to view—they were Aristocratic scions,
Set learning, laws, and letters, and Æsthetics at defiance.

They came, they saw, and they resolved ;
Said they, “ We will, between us,
Do for Apollo Belvidere
And Medicean Venus.

They dragged them into quad. at night,
And chopped them into mince-meat ;
A perfect joke they voted it,
And sport for any prince meet.

The fragments next they burned to dust
Upon a pyre funereal,
Interred the dust in coal-boxes—
It was a classic burial.

The Muses looked, and shrieked with rage,
With rage the Graces quivered ;
And thus their curse upon the four Iconoclasts delivered :

“ Since ye destroyed the perfect type
Of god, and man, and woman,
Ye shall become more hideous
Than any being human.

“ Not Rachel’s art shall e’er restore
A single grace of feature,
And ye shall be for evermore
Abhorred of every creature.”

Four scouts came up to summon them
Before a college meeting ;
They fell in fits before they'd time
To give their masters greeting.

Two dons in wrath to fetch them came,
Stern venerable clerics ;
But at the sight of them went off
In violent hysterics.

The art professor saw : his brains
Became as soft as batter,
Grew softer, softer, till he was
As mad as any hatter.

Even the bold vice-chancellor
At sight of them skedaddled ;
He was too late ; from that day forth
His head was slightly addled.

Where'er they went the people fled,
And dogs set up a howling ;
The cats began to spit and swear
When they came near them prowling.

At last there grew such discontents,
Complaints, and public shindies,
The four were packed in boxes, and Shipped off to the West Indies.

A storm arose : "The ship," said Jack,
"Of Jonah let us lighten,
And heave them out, to see if sharks
As well as men they'll frighten."

They heaved : the storm became a calm,
But it's an open question,
Whether or no, soon after that,
Four sharks had indigestion.

THE GREAT BEEYUGEE ; OR, THE ORIGIN OF MAN.

IN the days when earth was empty rolled a planetary world,
Which by some mishap celestial on another world was hurled,
And was smashed into a million "moss-grown" bits of aërolites (See address of Thompson, first of British scientific wights).*

* "We must regard it as probable in the highest degree that there are countless seed-bearing meteoric stones moving about space. The hypothesis that life originated on this earth from moss-grown fragments of the ruins of another world may seem wild and visionary: it is not unscientific."—Inaugural Address of Sir W. Thompson, President of the British Association, Edinburgh, August, 1871.

All the creatures living on it perished in that awful shock,

All except a great Beeyugee, clinging to a piece of rock ;
Forty million miles a second did that ark-like fragment fall,

Till it fell on the primeval surface of this earthly ball.

Evermore he wandered o'er it, and he felt his spirits sink,

When upon his isolation sadly he began to think.

He had neither nipped nor bitten, he had neither seen nor heard,

Any other living being, man or beast, or fish or bird.

Sternly standing on his hind legs, he apostrophised the sun,

As the poet Campbell's Last Man is imagined to have done :

" You and I, proud sun, are brothers : we are twins in loneliness,

Of the walk you're cock up yonder, so am I down here, I guess.

"It is well for you to be so, dull and inorganic mass, Whether 'tis of atmosphere or solid matter dense and crass ;

What you are the folks can only guess by peeping through a prism,

But they well know I'm an active, able, living organism.

"Also I'm a social being—you are obviously not ;
I can never be contented with a lone sequestered lot ;
You would never murmur though you ranged alone for a quintillion

Times a myriad myriad cycles, and a billion times a billion.

Sadly I remember past joys, such as I no longer feel,
And I see no future prospect of a single decent meal ;
Torn from my fond Beeyugee-ess and my little Beeyugees,

How on earth shall I exist here ? Proud sun, answer
if you please."

Whether these remarks attracted an aërolite from space,
Or some other cause produced it, is a thing I cannot trace ;
Scarce the Beeyugee had spoken—'tis the merest fact I tell—

From the skies another “moss-grown fragment” close beside him fell.

And upon it there came riding, riding safe and riding free,
All the great Beeyugee's kindred, whom he thought no more to see ;

Oh ! the greeting of that meeting, cause indeed for admiration,

That the earth was so supplied with her primordial population !

Now, you Wranglers, hear a statement which will strike
your science dumb,

Thus by Beeyugees on earth was done the first addition sum ;

They were first arithmeticians, with themselves themselves allying,

Were the first terrestrial creatures who could manage multiplying.

But as they went on increasing transformations strange were seen,

And descendants hardly seemed like what their ancestors had been ;

Next a series of dissensions, long divisions there ensued,
And a sort of civil war among the Beeyugeeish brood.

Then the stronger killed the weaker, and in turn themselves were killed,

And continual evolution all the world with new forms filled ;

On from that first Great Beeyugee animal existence ran,
Till at last it culminated in the lordly shape of man.

Man, "the heir of all the ages," may forget his low descent,

Or on modern doctrines of his genesis his mirth may vent :

Lest he should in pride of reason think there's really no connection,

Beeyugees refresh themselves while they refresh his recollection.

(SUGGESTED BY A SKETCH IN THE "GRAPHIC.")

"PRAY, Mr. Stycke, of No-man's Hall,

Can you inform us why

Augustus was no gentleman?

We pause for a reply."

That undergraduate upraised

His eyeglass to his eye ;

Again in blindest tones was heard,

"We pause for a reply."

He crossed his knees and clasped his hands,

And heaved a hopeless sigh ;

The suave examiner remarked,

"We pause for a reply."

Nervous perhaps was Mr. Stycke ;

It might be he was shy ;

Therefore quoth that examiner,

“ We pause for a reply.”

Away, away, wool-gathering,

His wits appeared to fly,

And still said that examiner,

“ We pause for a reply.”

He stammered, but no answer came ;

It seemed in vain to try ;

And though they paused, and paused again,

They could get no reply.

He left the schools ; he asked his friends,

“ D’ you know the reason why ?”

“ Because he once thrashed Ann Tony,”

Said they ; “ that’s the reply.”

He sent his scout up to the schools.

Quoth he, “ Go fetch me my Testamur.” Then he twirled his thumbs,

And paused for a reply.

The scout went up, the scout came down,
And sadly said, "Sir, I
Have asked the clerk ; he shook his head,
And gave me no reply."

“LAST night in our gardens the nightingale sang,
And the lime-walk with wonderful melody rang ;
And they say if you listen this evening at ten,
You'll be likely to hear the performance again.”

After dark, then, the whole population of Trinity Flocked to hear the discourse of the feathered divinity,
And the punctual bird, just at ten by the chimes,
Sent a sweet prelude echoing far through the limes.

It sang and it twittered, it thrilled and it trilled,
And the souls of the hearers with harmony filled ;
When it paused, with suspense sentimental men grew sick,
And longed for some more of the ravishing music.

No cigar might be lit, lest a puff of the smoke
Should cause the invisible songster to choke ;
And when a man ventured to utter a word,
It was, " Sh-sh-sh-sh, or you'll frighten the bird."

Invisible songster ! where could the bird be ?
There were dozens of eyes vainly straining to see.
At last from a window a voice came which said,
" The nightingale's tired, and is going to bed.

" A glass of pure water see, gentlemen, here,
Which accounts for his notes being liquid and clear ;
Here's the quill that he piped with, and now you may guess

That the fine old cock nightingale's only T. S."

A truly Magnificent Work.

"LIVES OF THE SAINTS." Enriched with 51 exquisite Full-page Miniatures, in Gold and Colours. Every page of the Text within Engraved Borders of Beautiful Design. In thick 4to, sumptuously printed, and bound in silk velvet, enriched with gold, preserved in a case, £7 7s.; in morocco, extra gilt, inlaid, £10 15s.

THIS VERY IMPORTANT WORK, commenced three years since, has at length been completed, and fully justifies the high expectations formed of it during its progress through the press. Taking the text of the Rev. Alban Butler as his guide, the Editor has, wherever practicable, carefully verified the references of that eminent divine. The delicacy and finish of the beautiful miniatures have never before been approached in any similar work in this country. They exhibit a beauty and exquisite softness of colour which have hitherto only been realised by the most expensive miniature paintings. The work must be seen to be appreciated, as it is like no other of the kind. The preparation has been so costly and slow, that the book is never likely to decrease in value.

Some of their caricatures of our weaknesses are not wholly devoid of truth.

HISTORY OF CARICATURE AND THE GROTESQUE in Art, Literature, Sculpture, and Painting, from the Earliest Times to the Present Day. By THOMAS WRIGHT, F.S.A. (Author of "A Caricature History of the Georges.") 4to, profusely illustrated by FAIRHOLT. 21s.

*** Companion Volume to "History of Signboards." Reviewed in almost every English journal with the highest approbation.

"A set of caricatures such as we have in Mr. Wright's volume brings the surface of the age before us with a vividness that no prose writer, even of the highest power, could emulate. Macaulay's most brilliant sentence is weak by the side of the little woodcut from Gillray, which gives us Burke and Fox."—Saturday Review.

"A more amusing work of its kind was never issued."—Art Journal.

"It is emphatically one of the liveliest of books, as also one of the most interesting. It has the twofold merit of being at once amusing and edifying. •• A Complete Library of Sensation Literature! There are plots enough here to produce a hundred "exciting" Novels, and at least five hundred "powerful" Magazine Stories. The book will be appreciated by all readers whose taste lies in this direction. Phiz's pictures are fully equal to those in "Master Humphrey's Clock."

A Keepsake for Smokers.

"THE SMOKER'S TEXT-BOOK." By J. HAMER, F.R.S.L.

Exquisitely printed from "silver-faced" type, cloth, very neat, gilt edges, 2s. 6d., post free.

"A pipe is a great comforter, a pleasant soother. The man who smokes, thinks like a sage, and acts like a Samaritan."
—Bulwer.

"A tiny volume, dedicated to the votaries of the weed; beautifully printed on toned paper, in, we believe, the smallest type ever made (cast especially for show at the Great Exhibition in Hyde Park), but very clear, notwithstanding its minuteness. . . . The pages sing, in various styles, the praises of tobacco. Amongst the writers laid under contribution are Bulwer, Kingsley, Charles Lamb, Thackeray, Isaac Brown, Cowper, and Byron."
—The Field.

THE TRUE CONSOLER.

HE who doth not smoke hath either known no great grief, or refused himself the softest consolation, next to that which comes from heaven. "What softer than woman!" whispers the young reader. Young reader, woman teases as well as consoles. Woman makes half the sorrows which she boasts the privilege to soothe. Woman consoles us, it is true, while we are young and handsome; when we are old and ugly, woman smokes and scolds us. On the whole, then, woman in this scale, the weed in that, Jupiter, hang out thy balances, and weigh them both, and if thou give the preference to woman all I can say is, the next time I see thee—O Jupiter! try the weed.

ORIGINAL EDITION OF BLAKE'S WORKS.

NOTICE.—Mr. HOTTEN has prepared a few Facsimile Copies (exact as to paper and printing—the water-colour drawings being filled in by an artist) of the ORIGINAL EDITION OF BLAKE'S "MARRIAGE OF HEAVEN AND HELL." 4to, price 30s., half morocco.

"Blake is a real name, I assure you, and a most extraordinary man he is, if he still be living. He is the Blake whose wild designs accompany a splendid edition of 'Blair's Grave.' He paints in water-colours marvellous strange pictures—visions of his brain—which he asserts he has seen. They have great merit. I must look upon him as one of the most extraordinary persons of the age."—CHARLES LAMB.

EMERSON. The Uncollected Writings, Essays, and Lectures of RALPH WALDO EMERSON. With Introductory Preface by MONCURE CONWAY. 2 vols. 8vo. By Arrangement with Mr. EMERSON.

INFELICIA. Poems by Adah Isaacs Menken. With NUMEROUS GRACEFUL DESIGNS ON WOOD. Dedicated, by permission, to CHARLES DICKENS, with Photographic Facsimile of his Letter, and a Portrait of the Authoress. In green and gold, 5s. 6d.

"A pathetic little volume exquisitely got up."—Sun.

"Few, if any, could have guessed the power and beauty of the thoughts that possessed her soul, and found expression in language at once pure and melodious."—Press.

"There is a passionate richness about many of the poems which is almost startling."—Sunday Times.

"What can we say of this gifted and wayward woman, the existence of whose better nature will be suggested for the first time to many by the posthumous disclosure of this book? We do not envy the man who, reading it, has only a sneer for its writer; nor the woman who finds it in her heart to turn away with averted face."—New York Round Table.

"An amazing little book, unhappily posthumous, which a distinguished woman has left as a legacy to mankind and the age."—Saturday Review.

Fcap. 8vo, 450 pages with fine Portrait and Autograph, 7s. 6d.

WALT WHITMAN'S POEMS. (Leaves of Grass, Drum-Taps, &c.) Selected and Edited by WILLIAM MICHAEL ROSSIGNOL.

"Whitman is a poet who bears and needs to be read as a whole, and then the volume and torrent of his power carry the disfigurements along with it and away. He is really a fine fellow."—Chambers's Journal, in a very long notice.

THE EARTHWARD PILGRIMAGE. By MONCURE CONWAY.

Cr. 8vo, 400 pages, cloth, neat, 7s. 6d.

"* This volume has excited considerable discussion, as it advances many entirely new views upon the life hereafter. The titles to some of the chapters will convey the idea of the contents of the work:—"How I left the world to come for that which is."

WILLIAM BLAKE: A Critical Essay. With facsimile Paintings, Coloured by Hand, from the Original Drawings painted by Blake and his Wife. Thick 8vo, pp. 350, 16s.

"An extraordinary work: violent, extravagant, perverse, calculated to startle, to shock, and to alarm many readers, but abounding in beauty, and characterised by intellectual grasp."

His power of word-painting is often truly wonderful—sometimes, it must be admitted, in excess, but always all of matter, form, and colour, and instinct with a sense of vitality."—Daily News, Feb. 12, 1868.

"It is in every way worthy of Mr. Swinburne's high fame. In no prose work can be found passages of keener poetry, or more unshorn grace, or more impressive harmony. Strong, vigorous, and musical, the style sweeps on like a river."—The Sunday Times, Jan. 12, 1868.

MR. SWINBURNE'S SONG OF ITALY. Fcap. 8vo, toned paper, cloth, price 3s. 6d.
